

The last remaining unspoiled countries in the Mediterranean

North Cyprus is one of the last remaining unspoiled countries in the Mediterranean where many parts remain totally unexplored and undiscovered. The opening of the borders of the Turkish North, the stronger attempts to reunify with the Greek South and the possible entry into the EU, has brought a lot of attention to this small and charming country.

This has led to a major growth in private 'holiday home' developments throughout the northern region, unarguably one of the most beautiful places in the Mediterranean in which to live.

Northern Cyprus boasts more than 150 miles of gorgeous sandy coastline with crystal clear waters of the eastern Mediterranean and over 330 days of uninterrupted sunshine, creating a true property "hot spot". This unique climate of Cyprus offers all year-round opportunities for a perfect holiday.

With the relaxation of border controls between the North and South of the island it is now possible for clients visiting Kyrenia to freely use airports serving the South then transfer to the North.

The effect of this significant change in travel arrangements is dramatic, with over 18 UK departure airports to choose from, point to the fact that the tourism market is also about to grow creating a high demand for quality holiday rentals. Foreign investment is actively encouraged and those wishing to invest in North Cyprus can be sure of a positive government attitude.

Property prices have increased considerably over the past five years and show no signs of slowing down. As more and more buyers are being attracted to the island now is the right time to invest in property in Northern Cyprus without the risk of being priced out of the market, as many buyers have been in the traditional markets of Spain and Portugal. Similar properties in South Cyprus are up to four times more expensive than the North so there is obvious room for capital growth.

As the legal system in North Cyprus is based on the UK legal system, the process of buying property in North Cyprus is fairly straightforward. All legal documents are prepared in English and there is a wide range of reputable solicitors in North Cyprus who are bilingual in both English and Turkish. Once the purchaser has decided on the property of their choice and paid over the holding fee, the property is taken off the market and the property purchase can be completed in a very short period of time.
